

華僑中學

HWA CHONG INSTITUTION (HIGH SCHOOL SECTION)
SECONDARY 21 ENGLISH LANGUAGE AND LITERATURE 2026

Name: Li Xinyang (17) Class: 102 Date: 20/1/26

Comprehension Practice 2 – Feedback and Reflections

Instructions:

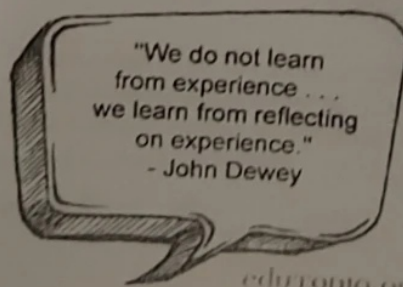

1. Read your own answers again.
2. Reflect on what we discussed in class, and the points raised by the teacher.
3. Read the suggested answer.
4. Think more deeply about the mistakes that you made, and reasons for which you did not manage to get the correct answers, to address the learning gaps.

Q1	Question Type: Use of Language Why I did not get the full marks for this question: I got full marks • What did I do? What mistake(s) did I make? • What needs to be done in order to attain the full marks? I correctly identified the answer in the passage
Q2	Question Type: Use your Own words Why I did not get the full marks for this question: • What did I do? What mistake(s) did I make? • What needs to be done to attain the full marks? I accidentally added inference instead of just rephrasing I need to find the key points and only need to rephrase it.
Q3	Question Type: Inferential - Interpretation Why I did not get the full marks for this question: I got full marks because: • What did I do? What mistake(s) did I make? • What needs to be done in order to attain the full marks? I wrote an adjective

Q3	Question Type:
	Why I did not get the full marks for this question: • What did I do? What mistake(s) did I make? • What needs to be done to attain the full marks?
Q4	Question Type:
	Use of Language
	Why I did not get the full marks for this question: I got full marks as: • What did I do? What mistake(s) did I make? • What needs to be done to attain the full marks? I stuck to the question's requirements and only wrote one word.
Q5	Question Type:
	Inferential - interpretation
	Why I did not get the full marks for this question: I got full marks as: • What did I do? What mistake(s) did I make? • What needs to be done to attain the full marks? I explained the meaning of "Seismic eruptions" based on the context and compared it to Miss Scatoh's class
Q6a	Question Type:
	Use of Language
	Why I did not get the full marks for this question: I got full marks as: • What did I do? What mistake(s) did I make? • What needs to be done to attain the full marks? I was able to explain the meaning of the phrase based on the context.
Q6b	Question Type:
	Use of Language
	Why I did not get the full marks for this question: I got full marks as: • What did I do? What mistake(s) did I make? • What needs to be done to attain the full marks? I stuck to the requirement and did copied the whole without missing or adding any words

Q7	Question Type:
	Use of Language
	Why I did not get the full marks for this question: I got full marks as: • What did I do? What mistake(s) did I make? • What needs to be done in order to attain the full marks? I spelt the literary device correctly and did not confuse the simile and metaphor.
Q8	Question Type:
	Literal
	Why I did not get the full marks for this question: I got full marks as: • What did I do? What mistake(s) did I make? • What needs to be done to attain the full marks? I only retrieved the answer and did not infer, also I identified the correct answers.
Q9	Question Type:
	Inference - Interpretation
	Why I did not get the full marks for this question: • What did I do? What mistake(s) did I make? • What needs to be done to attain the full marks? I only wrote one point ^{and inferred wrongly} and I needed to infer the second point to get full marks. For the first point I wrote, I inferred wrongly, so I only got one mark for my second point.
Q10	Question Type:
	Literal
	Why I did not get the full marks for this question: I got full marks as: • What did I do? What mistake(s) did I make? • What needs to be done to attain the full marks? I spelled the answer accurately and copied the word correctly.
Q11	Question Type:
	Use of Language
	Why I did not get the full marks for this question: I got full marks as: • What did I do? What mistake(s) did I make? • What needs to be done to attain the full marks? I know the meaning of the word "fervour" and was able to replace it with another accurate word.

Q12	Question Type:
	Literal
	Why I did not get the full marks for this question: I got full marks as: • What did I do? What mistake(s) did I make? • What needs to be done to attain the full marks? I identified the idea accurately and did not infer from it.
Q13	Question Type:
	Literal
	Why I did not get the full marks for this question: • What did I do? What mistake(s) did I make? • What needs to be done to attain the full marks? I missed out the key idea when I copied from the passage. I would need to copy the answer fully without leaving out key words. qd observation.
Q14	Question Type:
	Literal
	Why I did not get the full marks for this question: I got full marks as: • What did I do? What mistake(s) did I make? • What needs to be done to attain the full marks? I identified the correct value.
Q15	Question Type:
	Inferential - Application
	Why I did not get the full marks for this question: I got full marks as: • What did I do? What mistake(s) did I make? • What needs to be done to attain the full marks? I used clues from the passage to support my reasoning and did not copy from the passage.

seen
23/2

press on!

Reflection Questions:

A. Understanding the Question (Reading the Task Properly)

1. When I got this question wrong, was it because I:

- ☐ Misread the question?
- ☐ Did not notice the key word(s) (e.g. "one phrase," "in your own words," "tone")?
- ☐ Answered more / fewer points than required?

2. What command word did the question use (e.g. quote, explain, identify, infer)?

Did I respond in the correct format?

3. If the question asked for two points, did I:

- Clearly separate them and present them as 2 distinct points?
- Accidentally repeat the same idea?
- Include an extra answer (Excess Denied)?

4. Before answering, did I pause to ask myself:

"What exactly is this question testing — literal understanding, inference, or use of language?"

B. LITERAL QUESTIONS

(Guideline: Only required number of ideas considered. No inference required.)

1. Did I accidentally infer when the question only required retrieval?

2. Did I quote accurately when required?

- Did I make spelling mistakes?
- Did I copy the details exactly / correctly?

3. Did I give more ideas than required and lose marks due to Excess Denied? If it said, "State TWO reasons," did I:

- Clearly separate two ideas?
- Avoid giving a third (Excess Denied)?

4. Did I answer in the correct form?

- Phrase vs sentence vs word?
- Did I answer in a complete sentence and addressed the question?

C. USE OF OWN WORDS (UOW)

(Guideline: No lifting. Key words cannot be reused. No inference required.)

1. Did I only repeat key words from the passage instead of paraphrasing them / using own words?
2. Did I simply change the word form without doing a complete paraphrase?

Example:

- X "rational explanation" → "rational reason"
- X "entitlement" → "entitled"

3. Did I accidentally add inference instead of just rephrasing?
4. When paraphrasing / using my own words, did I:
 - Make sure I did not use any of the key words?
 - Maintain the original meaning accurately?

D. INFERENTIAL QUESTIONS

(Guideline: Must go beyond literal meaning. Must show reasoning. Cannot simply lift.)

1. When I answered an inferential question:

- Did I explain why using evidence?
- Or did I just lift answers from the passage?

2. Did I show the link between:

- Evidence → Interpretation → Explanation?

What clues in the text support my inference? Did I explain that link clearly?

3. If it was a tone/attitude question:

- Did I give a tone word – noun or adjective?

4. If it was irony:

- Did I include BOTH:
 - Expected meaning?
 - Actual reality?
- Or did I only describe and repeated the events / details in the question or passage?
- Did I simply flip the meaning (e.g. "He said it was safe but it was not") without explaining why that is ironic?

5. If it was explaining the effects of a literary device such as a metaphor:

- Did I include BOTH:
 - Literal image?
 - Applied meaning in context?

E. INFERENTIAL (APPLICATION) QUESTIONS

(Guideline: Must reason beyond explicit statement; not directly lifted.)

Suggest 2 reasons why....

1. Did I use clues from the passage to support my reasoning?

2. Did I avoid copying lines from the text as my explanation?

3 If the question said "Suggest one reason," did I:

- Use logic grounded in the passage?
- Avoid bringing in unrelated outside knowledge?

F. USE OF LANGUAGE

(Guideline: Non-inferential; must identify device precisely.)

1. If I identified a literary device:

- Did I spell it correctly?
- Did I confuse metaphor and simile?

2. Did I explain the effects of the literary device where required, not just name the device?

3. If asked to explain what a word means in the passage / line, did I analyse the meaning of the word in context, or did I simply give a dictionary definition?

4. If the question required me to quote one "word" or "phrase" or "sentence", did I stick to the requirement?

Review the 2 Comprehension Practice Papers that you did:

One question I misunderstood was...

I think I misunderstood it because...

~~the second~~ question 2. I ~~thought~~ had thought that the question was a literal question and did not understand what it was asking for.

One mistake I will not repeat is...

Taking ~~the~~ a literal question as an inference question or vice versa.

One strategy I will use next time is...

Read the question more & carefully.

Please complete
this page too.

23/2 seen

華僑中學

HWA CHONG INSTITUTION

NAME Li Xinyang

SUBJECT English

MARKS _____

INDEX NO. 17

CLASS 102

DATE 20/2/26

1. Use of Language

Use your own words [do not use any of the given words]

2. Others may think Miss Seetoh is insulting the sanctity of marriage. By changing her name so soon after becoming a widow.
[paraphrase the idea]

3. Inferential - Interpretation

[Impression - quality/trait] - adjective

She was authoritative / demanding / strict / commanding

X persistent / determined / controlling / forceful

4. Use of Language

Inferential - interpretation

5. Earthquakes and seismic eruptions are loud and very disruptive. [Im] [Literal meaning]. Similarly, like seismic eruptions, the students affect the other classes because they are loud and roudy. [Im] [Meaning in the APPLIED CONTEXT - logical reasoning].

> Im for idea of ~~dist~~ disruption in seismic eruptions [literal]

> Im for conveying scale of the problem [applied]

Use of language

6. uncomfortable / feel awkward / feel inadequate

Use of Language

7. Ximagery [to broad]

metaphor simile

8. Literal

Inference - Interpretation

9.

- As colleagues, it would not be professional to reveal her jealousy open to maintain workplace relations. [1m]
- She does not want to create disharmony or unpleasantness since they work in the same school. [1m]
- she may be afraid of what the unconventional Miss Seetoh might do in retaliation. [1m]

Any sensible answer that focuses on "secretly".

X Do not accept answers that explain why she is "seething"

10. [Literal]

[Use of Language]

11. enthusiasm/passion/ardour/zeal/vigour

12. Literal

Literal

13. She was not impressed by essays which merely discussed the usual clichéd topics

華僑中學

HWA CHONG INSTITUTION

NAME _____ SUBJECT _____ MARKS _____

INDEX NO. _____ CLASS _____ DATE _____

14. Literal
Hard work

Tolerance

Community spirit

15. Inferential - Application

華僑中學

HWA CHONG INSTITUTION

NAME Li Xinyang

SUBJECT English

MARKS 151

INDEX NO. 17

CLASS 102

DATE 13/2/26

- ① because the principal himself had ~~even went~~ to monitor the class
- ② discipline master ^{also} felt ~~very~~ uncomfortable speaking to her. ^{interacting with Miss S.}
- ③ she had polished mannerisms and spoke in a sophisticated way
- ④ Miss Seetoh's ~~sophisticated~~ way of speaking was very different from his own. ^{two points}
- ⑤ the principal ^{understand} ~~understanding~~ what was the noise. ^{because her behaviour and speech were so sophisticated}
- ⑥ She did not mind being questioned by the principal as long as her students were happy.
- ⑦ Miss Seetoh dared to
- ⑧ She would give her students ^{of fifty cents} a fine for forgetting her new name. ^{multiplied}
- ⑨ She fined her students for making mistakes
- ⑩ promised to increase the fine two or three times ^{but she contributed money too / increased the fines / amount too / but she also compounded the fines.}
- ⑪ the amount ^{accumulated sum would} she collected ^{go} with add up and given to the student who made the greatest improvement in grammar before the exam. ^{significant progress in English}
- ⑫ she was making up her own rules ^{not really}
- ⑬ she seemed to break school rules / did anything she pleased.
- ⑭ she was finding out her student's grammatical mistakes and allowed her students to place posters of her fighting their grammar mistakes. ^{she let her students display humorous depictions of her (fighting their mistakes.)}
- ⑮ she was dissatisfied with essays which talked about boring topics. ^{she did not like clichéd / unoriginal / dull essays / write work}
- ⑯ she wanted them to be innovatively and wanted them to write from life experiences / familiar experiences
- ⑰ she started a private english programme for her to help she even organised / initiated regular enrichment lessons.

⑭ In class, she disallowed students from using language from newspapers.

⑮ She had a bin to discard unoriginal / cliché d essays.

華僑中學

HWA CHONG INSTITUTION

NAME Li Xinyang SUBJECT English MARKS _____
INDEX NO. 17 CLASS 102 DATE 13/2/26

because the principal ~~himself~~ ^{also} had to monitor the class. The discipline master felt uncomfortable interacting with Miss Seetoh of speaking. She had polish mannerisms and sophisticated way, and did not mind being questioned by the principal as long as her students were happy. She fined her students for making mistakes but she contributed money, the accumulated sum went to the student who made significant progress in English. Furthermore, she seemed to break school rules. She let her students display humorous depictions of her. However, she disliked ^{unoriginal} ~~etc.~~ work and wanted them to ^{write} ~~write~~ from life experiences. She even organised ~~and~~ regular enrichment lessons. In class, she disallowed students from ~~use~~ using language from newspapers and had a bin to discard unoriginal essays.

華僑中學

HWA CHONG INSTITUTION (HIGH SCHOOL SECTION)
SECONDARY 1 ENGLISH LANGUAGE AND LITERATURE 2026

Name: Li Xinyang (17) Class: 107 Date: 20/2/26

Section B SUMMARY [20 marks]

Using only material from PARAGRAPHS 5 – 11, summarise the ways in which Miss Seetoh stands out from the other teachers in her school.

Your summary should not be more than 120 words, NOT INCLUDING the words given below.

Begin your summary with the words:

Miss Seetoh's classes were unusual...

=====

Reflecting on my Summary:

PART A: IDENTIFYING THE CORRECT POINTS

1. How many content points did I score? 9 / 12

2. Did I:

- ☐ Select main ideas only
- ☐ Include minor details and descriptions which are not relevant to the question
- ☐ Include examples instead of main points
- ☒ Miss obvious content points

3. Were there distracting details I mistakenly included?

Write one example:

"and threw any writing that mimicked cheap television dramas into a large waste-basket to discourage unoriginality."

4. Did I include points outside the required paragraph range? [YES / NO]

If your answer is YES, what would you do differently next time?

PART B: UNDERSTANDING THE TASK

5. What was the focus of the summary question?

In what way does Miss Seetoh stand out from the other teachers.

6. Did I stick strictly to the focus of the question? [YES / NO]

Or did I:

- ☐ Add interpretation
- ☐ Add personal explanation
- ☒ Add extra commentary
- ☒ Repeat the question [Hence, these are all the ways in which Miss Seetoh stood out from the rest of the teachers]

PART C: PARAPHRASING (LANGUAGE MARKS)

(Guideline: Lifting does not lose content marks but language marks will be very low.)

7. Did I copy phrases / sentences directly from the passage?

Yes / No

If yes, list one lifted phrase / sentence / point:

"cheap television dramas"

8. When paraphrasing, did I:

- ☒ Try to change key words?
- ☐ Change the sentence structure?
- ☐ Replace words with root forms (e.g. "hostile" → "hostility")?

9. Give an example where you tried to paraphrase but the meaning was inaccurate.

I used "elegant speech"

PART D: WORD LIMIT MANAGEMENT

10. Did I count and record the number of words? Note that this is a requirement.

[YES / NO]

11. What was my word count?

123 words

11. If I exceeded the word limit:

- Which ideas were cancelled?
- Did I lose content marks because of excess? What would I do differently next time?

yes, I would recount the word count every time I add changes.

12. If I was far below the word limit:

- Did I fail to include enough content points? What would I do differently next time?

PART E: ORGANISATION & CLARITY

13. Did my summary:

- ☒ Follow a logical order?
- ☒ Jump randomly between ideas?
- ☒ Repeat the same point in different words?

14. Were my sentences:

- ☒ Clear and concise?
- ☒ Did I use transitional words and connectors to show cause and effect?
- ☐ Grammatically confusing?

PART F: STRATEGIC THINKING

15. How did I select my points and approach the summary? I:

- ☒ Underlined the points first
- ☐ Tried to paraphrase after I identified and numbered the points
- ☐ Wrote immediately without underlining the points first
- ☐ Edited the first draft
- ☐ Wrote the final version after checking for logic, flow, grammar/spelling, and word count.

16. What would I do differently next time?

I would make sure that there ^{are} ~~were~~ at least twelve points before ~~start~~ writing them down ~~and~~ cancel irrelevant sentences and number my points.

PART G: ANALYSING MY MISTAKES

Complete this:

I lost content marks because I did not write all the points down.

I lost language marks because I repeated points and did not completely rephrase the key words.

One habit I must change is
Not ~~under~~ numbering and counting the points.

1 The sun disappeared below the horizon as we paddled further into the swamp. Now that we were free of the reeds, I found the balance of our canoe difficult to maintain. Its sides were high, but its draught was decidedly shallow, and the slightest movement tended to send the whole vessel lurching dangerously to one side. It would not have been my craft of choice for a crocodile hunt, especially without a life jacket.

it is very effect

2 My thoughts turned to the size of the specimens we might encounter. "It all depends on whether we come across salties or freshies," Jack told me. "The saltwater crocodile is massive. A mature male reaches a length of more than three metres, but really big ones can grow to twice that length." He was sweeping the beam of his powerful torch across the water in front of him.

3 It sounded distinctly possible that we had come across a considerably larger croc than I had seen in the pen. Hearing Jack point it out in such a casual manner made my blood run cold. The nightmarish scene was not difficult to imagine: our monstrous aggressor would gobble us up with a sudden snap of its gigantic jaws and use the boat's splinters like giant wooden toothpicks. I asked myself what I was doing on this hare- brained expedition, and failed to come up with a rational explanation.

4 I asked Jack how he could tell the difference between a big crocodile and a small one. "Distance between the eyes," he murmured without interest. He was obviously concentrating hard on the sweeping beam in front of him.

5 We glided along for some time, accompanied by the sound of frogs that resonated like castanets in the distance and the pneumatic buzzing of mosquitoes and other flying insects. I was being eaten alive and had not been told I would need repellent. The dark expanse of open water ahead of us was a floating wilderness of submerged, tangled tree roots, dotted with reeds and small shrubs sprouting above its surface. Jack continued scanning the murky waterline beneath the overhanging ferns before deciding to move on. We swept off into the darkness.

point

answer
not relevant

6 A few moments later, Jack resumed his vigil with the torch. "There is one," he whispered. I strained to follow the beam trained on the water, but could not spot a thing. As we moved towards the crocodile, Jack whispered, "Lost him, it dived." We hung around the area for a while to see if the croc would resurface, but it did not, and we moved off again. "That is a shame because it was a massive one," Jack said. I could not

1, 2, 3 : 31

9

So, we stayed in the area
for a short time briefly
to observe if it would appear, but it did not.

Thus, we rowed on again.

5

17

When Jack expressed disappointment at the missing the document 3
should add for 4 to make sense
4, 5, 6; 46

3
tell whether he was being serious or just trying to scare me, but either way I was not too unhappy to have missed it. 4 but I was not to send to have it. 9

7 We paddled for some time before Jack made an effort to scare me again. I had been attempting to get Jack to confess that what we were doing was dangerous. He denied it, but then he confessed that there was one situation that could be construed as risky. "If we come across a daddy croc, he might mistake our canoe for competition. The underside of a canoe looks fairly similar to another crocodile and if our croc felt like attacking, he would have this boat over with one whip of his tail." 40 risky attempting I not too sad confess
I had been trying to get Jack to confess that the what we were doing was risky, but he did not. 19

8 I closed my eyes and shook my head, in the vain hope that this whole expedition would turn out to be a bad dream. But shaking my head was not a good idea, because it caused the canoe to rock dangerously. I drew a deep breath: "OK Jack, if that did happen and we ended up in the water, what should I do?" 40 shut shook rocked rocking
I shut my eyes and rocked my head in vain hope that this adventure would be a nightmare. 18

9 Jack paused. "Well," he said, "do not splash about because that will get him excited. Dive underwater and swim away. Crocs rarely bite underwater and he is unlikely to follow you." I had noted that he had said crocs rarely bite underwater and that it was unlikely to follow me, but I did not pursue these points as the entire scenario was too horrible to imagine. I fell quiet, leaving Jack to continue scanning the water for swamp monsters while I digested this information. The whole escapade had been preposterous. If you choose to venture into a remote swamp in search of crocodiles, you might reasonably opt to do so with more equipment than a torch, a broom, and a ball of twine. A gun might be handy for a start, and preferably a nippy boat with a large engine enabling a fast getaway. 50 adventure took horrible nightmare
fell in water
tread about shrike fell
I almost never tightened myself down and analysed not likely terrible scene
86+31=117
8+6=14
60 132

10 We continued in silence, the canoe gliding across a stretch of calmer water. The torch beam skimmed the surface in slow sweeps, revealing only drifting leaves and the faint outlines of submerged roots. The swamp felt less hostile here, though still thick with the smell of mud and decaying plants. Jack lowered his paddle and let the canoe drift for a moment. 65

11 "Nothing around," he murmured, more to reassure himself than me. 70

12 A small ripple travelled across the water, but it faded quickly and showed no sign of returning. The stillness that followed was almost comforting. With no eyes rising from the dark or sudden movements beneath the canoe, the earlier tension began to ease. My grip on the side of the vessel loosened only then, and I realised how tightly I had been holding on. 75

[Turn over

13 Jack resumed paddling at a steadier pace. The trees thinned ahead and the air felt fresher, touched by a faint breeze that had not reached the deeper parts of the swamp. The familiar sounds began to return: the distant croak of frogs, the soft hum of insects and the occasional rustle of leaves overhead. The swamp no longer felt like something crouched in the dark, waiting to rise. It simply felt vast and indifferent, as it must have always been. 80

14 We turned into a narrower channel lined with reeds, their tips shining faintly in the light of the torch. The water here was shallow enough for me to see the pale shapes of roots twisting below the surface. Nothing moved among them. The absence of danger felt almost strange after the restless fear that had followed us earlier, and for the first time that night, I found myself breathing more freely. 85

15 By the time we reached the open clearing near the edge of the swamp, relief settled over me like a blanket. We had not seen the enormous creature Jack had promised, and although he seemed disappointed, I felt nothing but gratitude. Whatever lurked in the deeper channels could stay there. I had no wish to return and find out. 90

Copyright Acknowledgement:

© Adapted from "Snap happy in the crocodile swamp"; 8 June 2003; <https://www.thetimes.com/article/snap-happy-in-the-crocodile-swamp-vvb68lzd52j>